RECTORS THOUGHTS

Jesus was a Jew that meant that he grew up accepting that if you were a Jew you are part of the community. That did not imply that all were good or worshipped Yahweh as they should. The history of the Jewish people is clear that they forgot their roots many times and were punished accordingly.

As the Church formed after the resurrection bringing in not just Jews to believe the message of Jesus but Gentiles (non Jews) as well it continued to accept that if you were a Christian you were part of the community.

That community believed that:

- a) They were sinners called to be saints,
- b) The risen Christ was in their midst,
- c) The Holy Spirit was at work within it each and everyone.
- d) That friendship was inclusive and generous,
- e) Each member was to be affirmed as of infinite worth, dignity and influence.

This created a community of love, overflowing in gratitude and wholehearted surrender to God, because it participated in the life of God.

Like the Jews, Christians saw themselves separated from other communities. Those outside were damned but those within who believed were saved and would be rewarded when Jesus returned. The Church for this mistake has paid the consequences.

The Church needs to get back to its roots in the community as it should have been. Instead of seeing God's love as inclusive to Christians, we must recognise the universality of God's love. The intrinsic value of all people and that the Holy Spirit works whenever a heart goes out to another.

A new year begins and our thoughts turn to spring and therefore growth. The Church also looks towards growth. Are we going to grow in understanding? In our love and care for others?

The Archbishop of York, Dr. Sentamu said in his inaugural sermon:

"I would urge people who are judgemental and moralising - as followers of the Prince of Peace, the friend of the poor, the marginalised, the vulnerable - I bid you, by the mercies of God, to go and find friends among them, among the young, among older people, and those in society who are demonised and dehumanised; and stand shoulder to shoulder with them."

If the Church is to leave the wilderness we must learn to be inclusive and extend the love of God from ourselves to all people. That includes our neighbours. We need to be kind to one another, don't always look for their faults and shortcomings but look for their strengths

Confirmations: Please let me know if you would like to be confirmed or wish to know more about it.

WOLD & MARSH MAGAZINE

I am quite often asked if there is a spare copy of the magazine.

The answer is that all of the magazines are on the the village website - and you can print them out from there.

Daffyd runs the website. www.willoughby-lincs.org.uk and all of the magazines are on it. There is also information about all the churches within his area, plus information about the parishes.

So - take a look at an interesting website. Pat

WILLOUGHBY GARDEN CLUB

Willoughby Garden Club members enjoyed a festive meeting in December when they watched demonstrations of sausage making, producing homemade mince-meat and flower arranging. This was followed by a supper of hot dogs, mincepies and country liqueurs. It was a lovely evening and well supported - to finish 2008.

The next meeting is on 27 January when Paul Gray, head gardener of Gunby Hall will be talking to members. He is always an entertaining and informative speaker so please come along to the village hall at 7.30 to hear him speak.

The February meeting is on Tuesday 24 when Ray Jacklyn from Spilsby will be talking about wild life in the garden.

WILLOUGHBY HISTORY GROUP

On January 21st the History Group will be meeting in the Village Hall at 2.00pm. This meeting is put together the final pieces of the jigsaw to finish the 2008 yearbook.

February's meeting is on Saturday 21st at 2-4pm.

Tom Porter will be speaking about "Boyhood memories of Alford". Those who know Tom appreciate he is a great character and an excellent speaker. Please come along and invite your friends. The entrance of £2.00 includes light refreshments.

WILLOUGHBY VILLAGE HALL

The interior painting is now finished. I'm sure you will all be glad to know this. It has taken a very long time and we have lived with the smell of paint for too long - but the Probation Service have done a very good job and it was free. The external painting will be done by them in the new year when the weather is suitable.

The John Kirkby Collection now has all the artifacts identified. I hope to tidy up and complete the displays before the spring.

Pat L-B

CHAIR FOR SALE : Large wing arm chair with high seat.

Posada: "Mary & Joseph" (from the crib set) travelled round Ulceby as intended during Advent and returned to Church on Christmas Eve to be placed in the stable with the other characters in the Christmas drama at the carol service.
